Overview settlement U.S. dollar holiday schedule

The Mastercard settlement U.S. dollar holiday schedule is based on the U.S. holidays observed by the New York Branch Federal Reserve are described in this section.

Settlement holidays

Mastercard Global Settlement Services supports regional settlement service cutoffs on most U.S. Federal Reserve holidays.

This feature offers customers the ability to settle cross-border and intracurrency activity based on the holiday schedule of their local settlement bank, with the exception of 1 January and 25 December when no settlement cutoffs are performed.

Settlement bank advisements will be distributed to customers according to the holiday schedule provided by the local settlement bank or local monetary authority.

Mastercard will not move monies in a Regional Settlement Service on days when the U.S. Federal Reserve Bank is closed. As a general rule, when U.S. Federal Reserve holidays occur on a Saturday, Federal Reserve banks and branches will be open the preceding Friday. When U.S. Federal Reserve holidays occur on a Sunday, all Federal Reserve offices will be closed the following Monday. See New York Branch Federal Reserve Bank Holidays for specific holiday dates.

Overview

Detailed MCC information is organized in several ways.

- Acceptor business code (MCC) criteria
- Required use of MCCs, transaction category codes, and acceptor business programs
- Added and changed MCCs
- MCCs in numeric, alphabetic, and transaction category code order
- Abbreviated airline names to be used in the Merchant Description in the IPM First PresentMULTIDRAGment/1240 message
- Acceptor business programs and associated MCCs

Acceptor business code (MCC) criteria

Mastercard uses various criteria for establishing new acceptor business codes (MCC).

Before customers request new MCCs, they should review this practice to determine whether a merchant qualifies for a new MCC.

For industry MCCs, please refer to the ISO 18245 standard for the requirements.

Mastercard uses the following criteria to establish new generic MCCs:

- Projected annual bankcard volume for the MCC must equal at least USD 10 million, and the new merchant type must be distinct and separate from other industries; or
- Industry transaction characteristics require that the transactions must be identified specifically in the authorization and clearing systems to maximize Mastercard opportunities (for example, Payment Transactions).

Mastercard uses the following criteria to establish new travel and entertainment industry MCCs:

- Projected annual bankcard volume for the MCC must equal at least USD 1 million; and
- The merchant must be listed in an internationally recognized trade directory, for example, the Official Airline Guide; and
- If the merchant is an airline, the merchant must have 10 or more aircraft in the fleet, or
- If the merchant is a car rental company, the merchant must have 500 or more vehicles, or
- If the merchant is a hotel, the merchant must have in place a preferred usage program for which cardholders must register, or must have five or more properties or a single property with 500 or more rooms. If the merchant has multiple properties, then each property must operate under the same name.

Note that Mastercard grants new MCCs at its sole discretion even if the merchant meets the above stated criteria.

NOTE: To add, change, or delete an MCC, complete the Acceptor Business Code (MCC) Request Form (Form 380) available on Mastercard Connect® by selecting Help > Forms.

Required use of MCCs

MCCs are required in all authorization and clearing messages initiated at a point-of-interaction location. The MCCs help to accurately reflect the merchant's primary business and facilitate risk management.

Acquirers must provide a valid and accurate MCC recognized by Mastercard in Data Element (DE) 26 (Acceptor Business Code [MCC]) of the IPM First Presentment/1240 message. An accurate MCC is defined as a valid MCC that most reasonably and fairly describes the merchant's primary business. IPM First Presentment/1240 messages submitted with an invalid MCC will be rejected, and IPM error message 0531, "DE26 ACCEPTOR BUSINESS CODE (MCC) INVALID OR OBSOLETE," will appear.

Transactions with MCCs from 3000 through 3350 must supply an abbreviated airline name.

Transaction Category Codes

Transaction Category Codes (TCCs) are required in Mastercard authorization messages and are used during Stand-In processing.

Mastercard uses the TCC to determine the transaction currency amount that Mastercard will authorize on behalf of the issuer. The description of each MCC includes the TCCs that are valid for that MCC. Only a valid combination of MCC and TCC may be used in a transaction.

Definitions: Transaction Category Codes and types of transactions

Each of the Transaction Category Code types and the transactions that are applicable to them are organized in the TCC and corresponding transaction type table.

Overview: standard processing exceptions

Exceptions to standard processing covered in this section are member ID/ICA numbers that are for Mastercard internal use only.

Mastercard member IDs/ICA numbers

Mastercard defines all member ID/ICA numbers as member ICA numbers or Mastercard internal member IDs/ICA numbers.

Mastercard establishes specific member ID/ICA numbers for Mastercard use only. This prevents customers from erroneously routing transactions to member ID/ICA numbers designated for Mastercard internal use.

Customers should not process transactions against these Mastercard internal-use member ID/ICA numbers. If received, the transactions will reject.

NOTE: The member ID element corresponds to the ICA number.

Mastercard internal member ID/ICA number list

Values in this table are associated with Mastercard ICA numbers and are found in position 36 on the IPM MPE Table IP0072TI: Expanded Member ID Master.

Description of Mastercard internal member ID/ICA numbers

Overview

Various types of limits are described in this chapter.

- Floor limits
- Terminal offline chip authorization limits
- EMV mode contactless transaction terminal offline chip authorization limits
- Transit First Ride Risk (FRR) claim transaction limits

Floor Limits: magnetic stripe-read, key-entered, and paper-based transactions only

The floor limit value is a maximum amount above which the merchant must obtain an online authorization from the issuer before completing any of the following types of card-present transactions:

- Magnetic stripe-read and key-entered transactions at a magnetic stripe-reading point-of-sale (POS) terminal without online capability; and
- Transactions completed with manually recorded (whether imprinted or handwritten) card information (also called paper-based transactions).

The floor limit for all magnetic stripe-read, key-entered, and paper-based transactions in all countries is zero.

A merchant or acquirer that does not obtain an authorization for a magnetic stripe-read, key-entered, or paper-based transaction may have financial responsibility for a disputed transaction as a result.

Floor limits do not apply to:

- Transactions that always require online authorization, including all card-not-present transactions (for example, electronic commerce [e-commerce], mail order/telephone order [MO/TO], Digital Secure Remote Payment [DSRP], Mastercard Mobile Remote Payment, and recurring payment transactions);
- EMV chip transactions (refer to the Terminal Offline Chip Authorization Limits section); and
- Transactions occurring at CAT 3 (Limited Amount Terminal) devices. By definition, CAT 3 devices do not have online authorization capability, and therefore, all transactions occurring at such devices use offline processing.

NOTE: The maximum transaction amount for magnetic stripe-based transactions at CAT 3 devices, including contactless magnetic stripe transactions (that is, non-EMV based contactless transactions),is zero. The maximum transaction amount for EMV chip-based transactions (including contactless EMV-based transactions) is EUR 50 in the Europe region and USD 40 outside of the Europe region.

Terminal offline chip authorization limits

The terminal offline chip authorization limit is a maximum amount above which the merchant must obtain an online authorization from the issuer before completing a contact chip-read transaction or EMV mode contactless transaction (unless a different limit for EMV mode contactless transactions applies, as stated below).

The terminal offline chip authorization limit for all contact chip-read and EMV mode contactless transactions in all countries, for all brands, must not exceed USD 200, or EUR 200 in the Europe region. In cases where the U.S. dollar (or the Euro in the Europe region) is not legal tender, the maximum amount may be increased or reduced by an amount not to exceed 10 percent, so that the terminal offline chip authorization limit can be conveniently expressed.

A merchant or acquirer that chooses to use a higher terminal offline chip authorization limit or elects not to obtain an authorization for a transaction greater than the terminal offline chip authorization limit value may have financial responsibility for a disputed transaction as a result.

If the chip rejects an offline authorization request, the merchant or acquirer must not proceed with the transaction. In choosing to force accept an offline authorization that was rejected by the chip, the merchant or acquirer is electing to accept financial responsibility for the transaction in the event of a dispute by the issuer or cardholder.

Terminal offline chip authorization limits do not apply to:

- Transactions occurring at CAT 3 (Limited Amount Terminal) devices (which are covered in the prior section), and
- Transactions properly identified with a transaction category code (TCC) of C (manual cash disbursement), P (Payment Transaction), U (Unique transaction), or Z (ATM transaction).

EMV mode contactless transaction terminal offline chip authorization limits

Except with respect to transactions occurring at merchants located in the countries listed in this section, an EMV mode contactless transaction may be authorized offline in accordance with the terminal offline chip authorization limits provided above. For transactions occurring at merchants located in the countries listed in this section, a different terminal offline chip authorization limit applies to EMV mode contactless transactions.

If an EMV mode contactless transaction exceeds the applicable terminal offline chip authorization limit, the transaction must be authorized online by the issuer. If the transaction amount is equal to or less than the applicable terminal offline chip authorization limit amount the transaction may be authorized offline by the EMV chip.

France

In France, the EMV mode contactless transaction offline chip authorization limit is EUR 30.

Transit first ride risk claim transaction limits

An acquirer of contactless transit aggregated transactions must confirm that the issuer approved the authorization request initiated at the start of the aggregation period, whether in real-time or on a deferred basis, before submitting the First Presentment/1240 message for the aggregated transit fare amount.

As an exception to the foregoing, pursuant to the transit First Ride Risk (FRR) framework, the acquirer is permitted to submit a First Presentment/1240 message to claim transit debt, up to a specified limit applicable in the merchant's country, for contactless aggregated transit transaction authorization requests submitted on a deferred basis that were declined and unrecoverable. For more information about transit FRR claim transactions, refer to the Transaction Processing Rules.

The FRR claim transaction limits are published in Appendix E of the Transaction Processing Rules and Appendix A of the Chargeback Guide.
